

Reflections

It was a year.

I pushed myself to critically engage in design in ways I had never done before.

It resulted in a lot of floundering and clawing for some resemblance of direction.

Countless false starts and dead ends.

I think a younger version of myself, maybe the one that arrived in Dundee four years ago, would have been crushed by it.

But I was able to hold on. Maybe that's a testament to DJCAD and the high standard of the tutors. Or maybe I'm just really awesome.

I came across this tweet on the day of submission,

murat
@mayfer

...

i'm 99% sure openai is still silent on image-gpt4 because being able to solve most captchas is freaking them out a bit if catcpa's don't work, we literally have no alternatives right now. what do?

09:03 · 27/04/2023 · 429K Views

107 Retweets 47 Quotes 1,837 Likes

I was able to develop this idea months ago. Not because I heard someone else say it, but from my own effort to try and make sense of an area I don't really understand.

It reflects the level of critical engagement my process exhibits.

Saying that, I'm still not very happy with the design.

Poem over.